The Making of the Peace

"For one white singing hour of peace Count many a year of strife well lost" . . .

—SARA TEASDALE

A new dawn of peace breaks upon the horizon . . . the long, bitter years of strife are ended . . . and before us stretches the formless future. A sigh of relief escapes our lips. Is it really true? The sad, lonely hours, days, months of watching and waiting are over. Truth and justice have triumphed, as we were certain they someday would. But we shall not forget the costly price of that victory, and our thoughts will ever turn toward those who did not live to see its fulfillment.

Rest for a moment. Breathe in the fresh air of freedom once again. But do not pause too long . . . it is time to put our shoulders to the wheel and strive with renewed vigor to rebuild our future world upon the ruins of the past. We have received the prize of peace . . . it is our task to make it longlasting. To that task we humbly dedicate ourselves—to the making of the peace!

BROMPTON

BROMPTON, suggestive of "Merrie England" and "La Belle France," fair lands across the mighty Atlantic Ocean, which in the time of "Yester Years" gave of their Manhood and Womanhood, the brave, the hardy pioneers, who, weary of the gigantic conflicts of Europe sought a New Home in the New World where, undisturbed by the upheavals of Europe, they could build for themselves and their posterity a new home in the New World beyond the Atlantic.

The "First Colony" at Jamestown was in 1607 and was succeeded by the exploration of the Rappahannock River by Capt. John Smith in 1608, in which year, so far as known, the eye of the "white man" first saw the tree-covered top of what is now known as Brompton, the ancient and historical estate, which has in 1945, been acquired for use as a portion of the grounds of the Mary Washington College for Women of the University of Virginia.

This land is part of a "Crown Grant" of 2,000 acres to John Buckner and Thomas Royston of May 2, 1671 for the transportation of 40 persons into the colony. This ancient "Crown Grant" is still extant and notably testifies to the courage, hardihood and bravery of the women of that early time, for among the "forty persons" transported into the colony, whose transportation was the consideration for the Grant, are listed Mary Parker, Dorcas Young, Elizabeth Sharps, Blanch Harding, Mary Thompson, Mary Greeford, Arabella Singleton, and Ann Townsend, and who can deny that brave women from thence till now have not mightily contributed to building that Free America in a New World of Lofty Ideals, Toleration, and Christian Comprehension.

In February, 1727, the Town of Fredericksburg was formed by Act of the House of Burgesses of Virginia, taking the river front of the Patent, an area of 50 acres, and the remaining 1,950 acres by successive deeds were divided, the "up-river" or northwestern half to John Royston, and the "down-river" or southeastern half, including the Brompton land to Col. Henry Willis.

Incidentally part of this lower half is now the beautiful National Cemetery, in which sleep 15,296 Union Soldiers, interred there immediately after the Civil War, and known in National Annals as Willis Hill—a true hill-up the side, on, and over the top, and down on the other side. Not so with Brompton, however, for Brompton is on high land at the summit of the escarpment.

The English, for thousands of years, have had the sea in their blood; their gaze has ever been seaward, not landward, and from their high ground, looking ever to the sea, they observed the land sloping from the convex escarpment down to the next level, then down again by succeeding "downs," to the sea shore, with its little sandy ridges washed by the sea on the shore lines, and being little "downs"—the last to the water—they called them "dunes."

The whole, however, were the English "Downs," along the heights of which for centuries from "London-town" had run, and now runs the "Brompton Road," on which is now situated one of the oldest and prettiest cemeteries—"God's Acre"—in all England, where sleep awaiting the Resurrection Morn, many of the mighty dead of the English Kings and their Lords, some of whom opposed the Roman invasion quite two milleniums gone by, before Saxon, Dane, and Norman had become amalgamated into the present British Union.

The Marye family were French Protestants-Huguenots, to whom, by the Edict of Nantes, signed by the French King, Henry IV on April 15, 1598 were granted full civil rights and liberty of conscience to worship God without molestation from King or Subject, Bishop or Priest. The Revocation of the Edict by King Louis, on October 18, 1685 deprived the Protestants of France of all civil and religious liberty, thus giving a new incentive to the emigration, mostly to England, of the Huguenots among whom were the Maryes and many of whom, after years in England, emigrated to Virginia, where they became outstanding citizens.

In the peculiar richness of its rural scenery Brompton perhaps surpasses other portions of the Virginia Piedmont and Tidewater. It is at the "Foot of the Falls" and commands a view of both the eastern limit of the Piedmont and of the western limit of the Tidewater.

At the foot of the "Downs" the non-tidal water of the Piedmont, coming down from the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge Mountain, meets the tidal water sweeping up-river from the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay. At the Falls the river, in countless ages, has cut its way through the living granite, and the high lands on both sides of the river, looking eastward a distance of eight miles, describe great semi-circles each concave to the river, thus forming, as it were, a great "Punch Bowl," on the rim of which sits Brompton and other beautiful and historic homes, each of commanding view.

From the mouth of the Rappahannock River, upstream for miles, the country is flat, and farther up it is largely marshes, or steep precipitous cliffs, and what a lovely sight must it have been to the settlers in the Fredericksburg region when, after a voyage from England, and reaching the present Brompton area, they saw the counterpart of their lovely "Downs" of England, the land from the river bank rising to the present Caroline Street level, thence to the Princess Anne Street level, and along the plains to the escarpment rising the convex surface to the summit where Brompton now stands, the "Mansion House" of substantial brick to be begun by John Lawrence Marye, after his initial purchase of ten acres from William Gordon and William Allen, September 26, 1821, and as shown by increase assessments on the land assessment books, almost year by year of additions to the dwelling house.

Unlike Willis "Hill," home of Colonel Willis, visited by William Byrd, progenitor of Senator Harry F. Byrd, in 1732, Brompton is not on a hill, but caps the escarpment, with level land back to the west until the western country reached into the "Wilderness" of the Civil War of 1860-1865. It was to rise this escarpment and capture Gen.

Robert E. Lee's headquarters at Brompton that the Northern generals vainly sent their heroic troop in the tragic battle of Fredericksburg, and the Northern Army correspondents, not knowing the terrain, or nature of the country, to the immediate west of Brompton, and being "landward" in their outlook, not "seaward" as the British of the English "Downs," gave to the whole expanse of the battlefield the sobriquet of "Marye's Heights," as it is known in the terminology of American Military History.

To his original purchase of 10 acres, John Lawrence Marye added other purchases of contiguous land, increasing his holdings to several hundred acres, an addition being the Alum Spring Wood Tract to the west, a hundred and seventy-nine acres.

On the Alum Spring Tract was a dam impounding the waters of Hazel Run, affording waterpower to run a large grist mill of stone construction, with stone miller's houses and stone granaries, serving this region before the American Revolution, and during the Revolution providing flour and meal for the Revolutionary Armies. This mill, with its accompanying buildings, became what would now be called a "Veteran's Hospital" for wounded and sick Revolutionary Soldiers and many from the battle of Yorktown were brought here for medical aid and surgical treatment.

The Rev. James Marye, first of this prominent family to come to Virginia, was a native of Rouen, Normandy and from thence to London, from which ran the "Brompton Road" in Kent. He married Maria Ann Staige, daughter of the Anglican minister, and sailed from London in September 1729, arriving in Virginia, settled in Manajin-Town, in present Goochland County, and was soon called to Saint George Parish in Spotsylvania County where he continued until his death in 1767.

His son, the second Rev. James Marye, who had studied at the College of William and Mary, succeeded his father in Saint George Parish, in which Parish is Brompton, and to the second Rev. James Marye and his wife, nee Mildred Slaughter, was born John Lawrence Marye, builder and owner of Brompton. John Lawrence Marye was a member of the Virginia Legislature in 1860-61, and consequently a member of that body when the Ordinance of Secession was adopted, and Virginia became one of the Confederate States of America.

Brompton passed into the ownership of the Lanes, thence to Capt. M. B. Rowe and thence to the Mary Washington College for Women of the University of Virginia. At the foot is the Sunken Road of Civil War fame; on its height were the headquarters of Gen. Robert E. Lee at the sanguinary Battle of Fredericksburg, December 1861, where the Northern Army crossed the Rappahannock River to undertake the impossible.

The world has many battlefields, but around Brompton is the memorialization of the courageous devotion of men who carried on the traditions that Americans will die for their convictions, which is in accord with the educational philosophy of the age, which aims to give the learning process more vitality, to make truth more real.

Viewed from its crest, one can see a mile away, the Northern Neck of Virginia, to which region James II on February 10, 1687 granted the right of Religious Freedom to the settlers—"the free exercise of their Religion without being prosecuted or molested upon any penall laws or other account for the same," and the Kings Highway is on the north side of the river, and the Tidewater Trail on the south side, along both of which streamed the settlers to penetrate the "gaps" of the Blue Ridge Mountain, thence over the Valley of Virginia and the Alleghany Mountains, to the "Winning of the West." As surely as the ships of the world have navigated the English Channel in view of Brompton on the English Downs, so surely have peoples of the early American days, in almost endless streams, passed "Brompton Downs" in Spotsylvania County in their journey to the West.

History, we dare hope, is repeating itself at and around Brompton and the lovely Mary Washington College for Women in a more enduring way in these days of the twentieth century. The lovely student body, from many states of the Union and from foreign lands stands today upon the threshold of a new Era—at the beginning of a new "New Learning"—more fraught with consequences to this life and the life to come than the "New Learning" of Europe, in the sixteenth century, held for the hardy, intrepid, faithful and courageous women who are named in the old Patent of 1671, which embraced the Brompton yet to be.

A singular and striking similarity exists between the Brompton of the old world of centuries ago and this Brompton of the Mary Washington College for Women in Spotsylvania County, Virginia.

In topographical aspect, here as there, on the summit of the "Downs," commanding views of the water; here as there, the proximity of a lovely cemetery, final resting place of heroic dead who gave their lives at the call of duty and in their country's welfare; here as there, formerly a part of Brompton, and in view close by, to the west, the site of the ancient "Veteran's Hospital"; here as there, each in Saint George's Parish, a great Institution, whether called school, or college, or university, for the physical, mental, and moral education of young women.

As the opportunities of these young women of the twentieth century, and of their successors in centuries yet to come, exceed the opportunities of their precursors of 1671, so much the more will their responsibilities be. It is an Iconoclast, indeed, who doubts that the young women of the Mary Washington College for Women will fail in any of these responsibilities.

Alumni T. Embrey!

Charles Henry Niehaus was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, January 24, 1855. In early life he followed wood-carving, stone-cutting and marble-carving. He studied art at the McMicken School of Design, Cincinnati, and at the Royal Academy at Munich. He also studied in Athens and Greece.

He was a member of the National Sculpture Society, National Institute of Arts and Letters, Academician of the National Academy of Design, Fellow of L'Associazione della Artistica Internazionale di Roma.

Mr. Niehaus died at Eagle Crest, Grantwood, New Jersey, June 19, 1935.

Mary Washington College feels itself to be in high favor for the great privilege of having in its halls an elaborate exhibit of many of the works of this master artist, through the gracious generosity of his daughter, Marie Niehaus. The BATTLEFIELD feels itself peculiarly rich in the employment of pictorial pages of a Hahnemann monument, an intrepid John Paul Jones, the grace of a Greek statue, a beloved Robert E. Lee, a noble Abraham Lincoln. The book comes into a lasting value through the pictured art that has entered into its content.

The sculptured works of Charles Henry Niehaus are in themselves a monument to his genius but a yet greater monument, invisible, rises within the heart of Mary Washington College—that of a recognition of the wealth of culture which can become a part of ourselves through the law of association with the rare workmanship of a famous artist of wide renown. Through the mounting years, there will come a deeper appreciation, a sustained gratitude, and a better understanding of art and culture for the fact that Charles Henry Niehaus lived, and loved, and worked, and—gave.

We Build On The Past

We have finished, yes—and yet it is we who are just beginning. Four years—long if measured in days, short if cherished in memory—are ours—ours on which to build a life—a life never to be free from the influence of those things here experienced.

The beauty in life will be heightened when we remember such as a winding road, leading through an ever-changing forest; a silent white landscape, lying under shining stars, upon which each has made her secret wishes and placed her hopes; an unforgettably beautiful spring, rich in the color of newborn leaves and flowers, and full of strength for those who perhaps have been discouraged by winter's forbidding bleakness.

The happiness in life will be enriched by the memories of living as one of a great family—all striving through collective talents and personalities to create an harmonious and pleasant atmosphere. Who among us shall fail to remember the anxiety of benefits, perfected by hours of grueling but satisfying work; the short-lived but perfect moments of ring dances; the pride and confidence felt in the first eventful donning of cap and gown? There has been sadness too, but what other standard have we by which to measure final happiness—for only out of failures can ultimate success grow and be realized; each is essential and interdependent.

We have finished, yes—we began at the bottom of a long hill, and in climbing the hill have thus climbed to a new height. Now, we shall be regarded with a new respect and faced with a greater challenge. The respect we will merit, for we have proved ourselves worthy of our alma mater, who, herself, has moved to ever higher standing during our association with her. The challenge we must meet with boundless strength and courage, for it is with us that the peace and security of a postwar world are to be trusted. These four years, though infinitesimal in the span of time, have been momentous in the progress of world affairs. We, who have quietly withdrawn ourselves from these years of conflict in our preparation for future service, are the Class of Forty-six, who now emerge to take our rightful place in shaping the pattern of tomorrow—in so doing shall we achieve our new beginning.

A Moment's Pause . . .

A moment's pause before we turn our faces toward the last lap of our journey; a moment's reminiscence of the happy days that made up our Junior year:

"The Waltz of the Flowers," our Junior show, with Liz Krebbs as chairman, will remain one of the loveliest of the annual beauty contests.

We'll never forget our thrill of pride as Irene Taylor led the Tri-Unit to victory in the first M.W.C. song contest. Many are the class meetings and good old-fashioned get-togethers we have enjoyed with Irene at the piano.

Nancy Hite, Jean Kirby, and Marian Withers were separated from us as house presidents of Betty Lewis, Willard, and Cornell, but they remained a part of us and shared in all the fun. A cheer for the others, too: Barbara Buckham, House President of Mary Ball, Anna White, of Madison, and Anna Brauer, of Custis. Three cheers for our able class president, Nelle Dawes!

The Junior Class enjoyed a lovely tea given by the "Y," which Dr. and Mrs. Insley attended. We offer our grateful thanks to Dr. Insley for his never-failing help and cooperation as our sponsor.

The year drew to a close with the traditional Ring Dance, more meaningful than ever before because this was our first year of participation in its grace and beauty. The simple, dignified seal, set in a band of gold, represents fond memories of three years at Mary Washington, and promises, by the tiny "47" on the side, fulfillment of our hopes and dreams.

With a lingering look at the graceful columns of Mary Ball Hall, and a fresh memory in our hearts of the friendliness which is a part of Tri-Unit, we face with courage and expectation our final year of college.

Degrees . . . It Won't Be Long!

With the world at peace again, we returned to our Alma Mater with light hearts to begin our second eventful year at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia. At first, old friends were missed from our Freshman class, but transfer students came along to take their places. After five years of navy blue and khaki, it was good to have civi-clad dates strolling about campus.

Our class colors, green and white, an innovation at M.W.C., and Sophomore Day brought our members together into a wholesome group which bubbled over with enthusiasm and school spirit. Highlights of the year included such memorable events as the Beauty Contest in which two of our own girls—Sarah Armstrong and Marjorie Batty—placed first and second respectively. We emerged from the Song Contest, which called forth our utmost musical abilities, with two delightful class songs to carry with us through the remainder of our stay here at the college on the hill.

A "Fantastic Takeoff" was experienced with the production of our Benefit. Downright hard work and fun converted it into a harmonious display of our varied talent at its best. Teas, dances, and Lyceum programs added that certain touch which made our year finer and more complete.

Social life, however, was but a by-product of the main phase of our life at Mary Washington. Major and minor fields of study were decided upon and delved into with ardent interest and rigorous research.

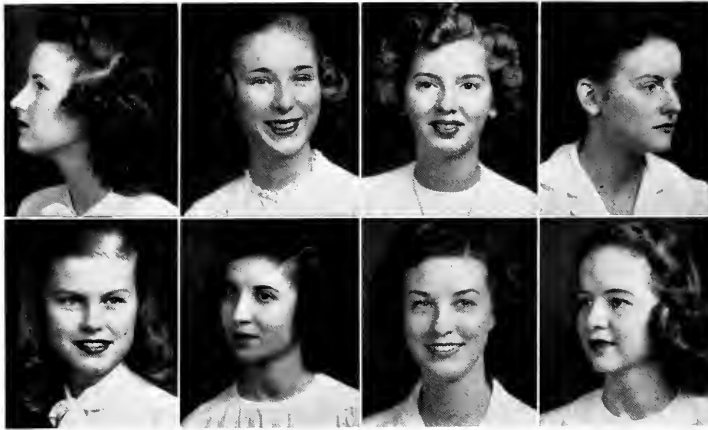

Can we ever forget our housemothers—Mrs. Bushnell and Mrs. Love, and their generous and loving guidance for which we are deeply appreciative. Memories of our dorms, Virginia and Betty Lewis, are also deeply implanted in our minds, and will long be remembered as one of the important features of our college lives.

Companionship and festivity coupled with mental stimulation—such was our Sophomore year at M.W.C. of the U. of Va.

Freshman Class History

That first week we were convinced that of all the people in the world, we were the most bewildered and forlorn. We couldn't find any place to put our clothes or to set up our vast collection of photographs; we couldn't remember our suite-mates' names or when the next "Y," "AA," or Freshman Orientation meeting was, and when we found out from someone else we couldn't get there. The ever-present saving grace was that our suffering was widespread, and that there was always someone with whom to mourn the lost advantages of a quiet, secure life at home!

When that reign of anguish subsided, we began to look around us, and we found our first great happiness at Mary Washington in the beauty of the hill. By then, fall had turned our woods into a flamboyantly beautiful scene splashed with warm scarlets and yellows. The bright autumn trees outlined against a clear blue horizon between the pillars of Seacobeck made an unforgettable memory for us. We began to make friends and, with unceasing attention and help from Big Sisters, faculty advisors and Student Government, to understand and love our college, its aims and traditions. The election of class officers was our first group movement, and it was then that we first thought of ourselves not just as freshmen in college but as "The Class of 1949."

The trials of examination week past, Christmas holiday brought us the glory of being members of that immediately recognizable group on the train and of having our names in the hometown paper. When we came back to school, eager and rested, we found to our unexpressible delight that we had the distinction of being

"second quarter freshmen," and were exalted in being able to direct a confused newcomer on her way to Monroe. We discovered then and there, with proper discretion, we could study and take part in our clubs, too, and began to find life exciting outside of the classroom and our dorm. Forums, benefits, and dance week-ends all claimed our attention and we began to feel quite collegiate—enough so to be amused when we remembered ourselves in that first week. We discovered, too, that a sense of duty and responsibility toward Mary Washington was active in us, and wondered if we might not be beginning to grow up. So the days passed quickly into weeks, and weeks vanished in the quarter, as the snow and ice which had made our woods a glittering, unreal fairy domain vanished and the winds grew warm. Spring came with more exams and, of course, the rewarding vacation and we felt as though we'd lived here all our lives, those things were so easily accomplished.

The horse show, May Day, and freshmen benefit, glorious customs all, made our third quarter a spring to be remembered, happily, into old age.

We looked, then, at our hill, grown green and lovely, at a stately white-columned building, aged and warmed by the dark green ivy twisting on its walls, at our friends' faces over the candlelight at dinner and knew that an important part of us, of our lives, was here—that something had been shared, something given and something taken, that the beauty, comradeship and knowledge that we had found at Mary Washington would be our cherished and imperishable treasures always.

*Hold high the torch!
 You did not light its glow—
 'Twas given you by other hands, you know.
 'Tis yours to keep it burning bright,
 Yours to pass on when you no more need light;
 For there are other feet that we must guide,
 And other forms go marching by our side;
 Their eyes are watching every smile and tear
 And efforts which we think are not worthwhile,
 Are sometimes just the very helps they need,
 Actions to which their souls would give most heed;
 So that in turn they'll hold it high*

*And say, "I watched someone else carry it this way."
 If brighter paths should beckon you to choose,
 Would your small gain compare with all you'd lose?
 Hold high the torch!
 You did not light its glow—
 'Twas given you by other hands, you know.
 I think it started down its pathway bright,
 The day the Maker said: "Let there be light."
 And, He, once said, who hung on Calvary's Tree—
 "Ye are the light of the world . . . Go! . . . Shine—for me."*

It is we who bring "Y" to the freshmen—watching them organize and build on that which we give is only part of the reward given us in return—for in building they will achieve and so pass to others the ideals of womanhood realized in those who have gone before.

Freshman Commission

Another year—another Commission—and so much excellent material for forming an organization to further the purpose of “Y” on the Hill.

After having taken several weeks to “get acquainted” the Commission elected its officers and began discussing plans for the annual doll show. And what a show! With Thanksgiving holidays interrupting the initial Doll Show plans, and exam week coming up soon after, everything was very rushed and exciting up to the last minute. It was hard for the judges to come to a decision, but Betty Jean Curry’s group triumphed by carrying off the high honors of the evening with the cuddliest, most playable doll.

This was just one of the activities we enjoyed during the year. We shall never forget the social gatherings—and our hostessing at the “Y” teas.

Our main purpose has been to help the new students become acquainted with the various activities of “Y” and to encourage their interest and participation in “Y” program. We have worked during 1945-46 with this as our goal and have found ourselves richer because of the friendships we have made and memories we have shared.

Alpha Phi Sigma, a national scholastic fraternity, is represented on campus by the Gamma Chapter.

Honor students are bid into the fraternity and, maintaining the required scholastic record, may advance through the three degrees of novice, apprentice, and master membership.

The serious nature of the organization begins with the initiation ritual and a gayer note is added by the monthly social gatherings. The congenial atmosphere that always prevails makes the club a success.

Alpha Psi Omega is a national honorary fraternity to which persons, outstanding in the field of dramatic art, are elected. The various phases of work which determine eligibility for election include acting, playwriting, technical work, radio work, business managing, producing and directing.

New members are pledged after each major college production. Analysis of work on all productions major or minor determines consideration for candidacy.

This year, Alpha Psi Omega produced the well-known play by Alberto Casella, Death Takes A Holiday, adapted for the American stage by Walter Ferris. The members of Alpha Psi Omega had a part in all dramatic productions on the campus during the year, helping carry out their aim of furthering dramatic activities here at the college.

ing organization. The members in the Classes of 1944 and 1945 have shown us well that service and recognition of this kind go hand in hand.

We have tried to continue their activities and develop new projects which we think might increase in some way the social, intellectual, and spiritual growth of our fellow students. Conducting the freshman orientation program on campus customs and traditions, publishing the second edition of the Student Directory, presenting a series of lectures by Dr. Elizabeth W. Baker on Parliamentary procedures, and career conferences with alumni and students, have been our contributions to college life this year.

As we look to graduation, we also look to our future members. Chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, personality, and service to the school, the new members will bring to Cap and Gown new ideas and new plans. We hope that, in return, they will gain new abilities and new joy in living.

We, the third generation of Cap and Gown, are proud of the trust placed in us by the preceding members. Conceived as the senior honorary society of Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, Cap and Gown is a function-

The Alpha Chapter of Sigma Tau Chi was organized at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia in April, 1940. Students majoring in Commerce are eligible for membership.

The general object of the organization is to meet certain extra-curricular needs of college men and women who expect to occupy positions in the business world or in the teaching profession.

The purposes of this organization are to encourage the desire for accurate knowledge and understanding wherever and whenever facts and their meanings are important, to promote the development of artistic skill and accuracy in office techniques, and to aid in the development of personality.

Appropriate social and cultural activities are carried on by the club.

600 on the dial . . . 4:30 on the clock . . . and Mary Washington College is on the air! This year the campus radio station became affiliated with the Intercollegiate Broadcasting System, and adopted as its official title Station WMWC. Daily dramas, campus news, the concert hour, and the hit tune parade have become favorites on the Hill. Those who are selected to be on the staff receive valuable training as announcers, actresses, engineers, and script writers—training which will prepare them for jobs in radio.

Once again Mary Washington girls, in a spirit of brotherhood, contributed to the annual Campus Chest. Though we did not soar to the goal our expectations had set, we gathered a substantial sum to be distributed to various local, national, and international organizations, such as the World Student Service Fund, Tuberculosis Association, Thanksgiving White Fund, Community Fund, and British Refugee Children's Fund. Our main interest was in the students all over the world who so urgently need our help. We are proud to know that our small contributions will aid them to continue their education. We hope next year our challenge will be met more wholeheartedly.

Typical college girls of today dreaming of the past that built today's civilization, the members of the Athenaeum devote much time to keeping alive the wealth of knowledge and pleasure found in the classics. We learn of the customs of Greece and Rome and the lives of their men and women with the same enthusiasm that we devote to world affairs today, for "there is nothing new under the sun."

International Relations Club

In this year just past, the words International Relations have come to mean more to us than ever before. During the war our activities were necessarily curtailed, and we were kept quite busy just keeping ourselves informed on the current situation. But now that long-dreamed-of "Post-war World" has arrived, and through our club we have been able to better understand what the late Wendell Willkie meant by his term "One World." The world has indeed shrunk and we must learn to live peaceably in it.

The International Relations Club, under the capable leadership of its president, Katherine Knight, has added its bit in fostering better relationships and in educating the entire student body by sponsoring guest speakers. The most outstanding event of the year was our trip to Washington where we visited both the Senate and House of Representatives, as well as the Supreme Court.

Yes, on looking back in review, all the members might well be proud to say "I belonged" in this year which will go down in history as the beginning of the Atomic Age.

"ON STAGE EVERYBODY!" That's a familiar call to the members of Mary Washington Players, one of the most active and largest clubs on the Hill. Actresses, stage hands, make-up artists, business and publicity girls, lighting technicians, costume mistresses, directors—all have their place in the players. Every girl who senses the glamor of the stage participates in all of the dramatic activities on campus. Apprentices and master members alike have equal opportunity in the productions sponsored by the players, and this fall the college witnessed a series of one-act plays acted by new members and directed by experienced players. The two major productions of this group proved to be outstanding successes, and once more the players rang down the curtain on a profitable year.

The cultivation of good speech in the postwar world is one of the many aims which the society is endeavoring to meet by encouraging debates, forums, speech contests, and radio work. Consequently, Pi Sigma Kappa finds correct speaking ability conducive to a well-rounded and productive personality. This club offers each individual member an opportunity to improve her speech and to instruct others in the art of correct speech, interesting content, and good presentation. This, we believe, will make for a better understanding between individuals, groups, and nations

May we salute the M. W. C. Dance Orchestra as it progresses in its fourth year. Memories of "Our Theme" and the fun had by its fourteen members on many trips to nearby places such as Quantico and Washington will fondly be remembered.

Under the able direction of Mr. Ronald Faulkner, the orchestra has gained much prominence on campus as well as in surrounding localities.

The sweet strain of a sentimental song and the catchy rhythm of Boogie-Woogie both enhance the musical ability of its group and add to the appreciation of its listeners.

Mary Washington College Band

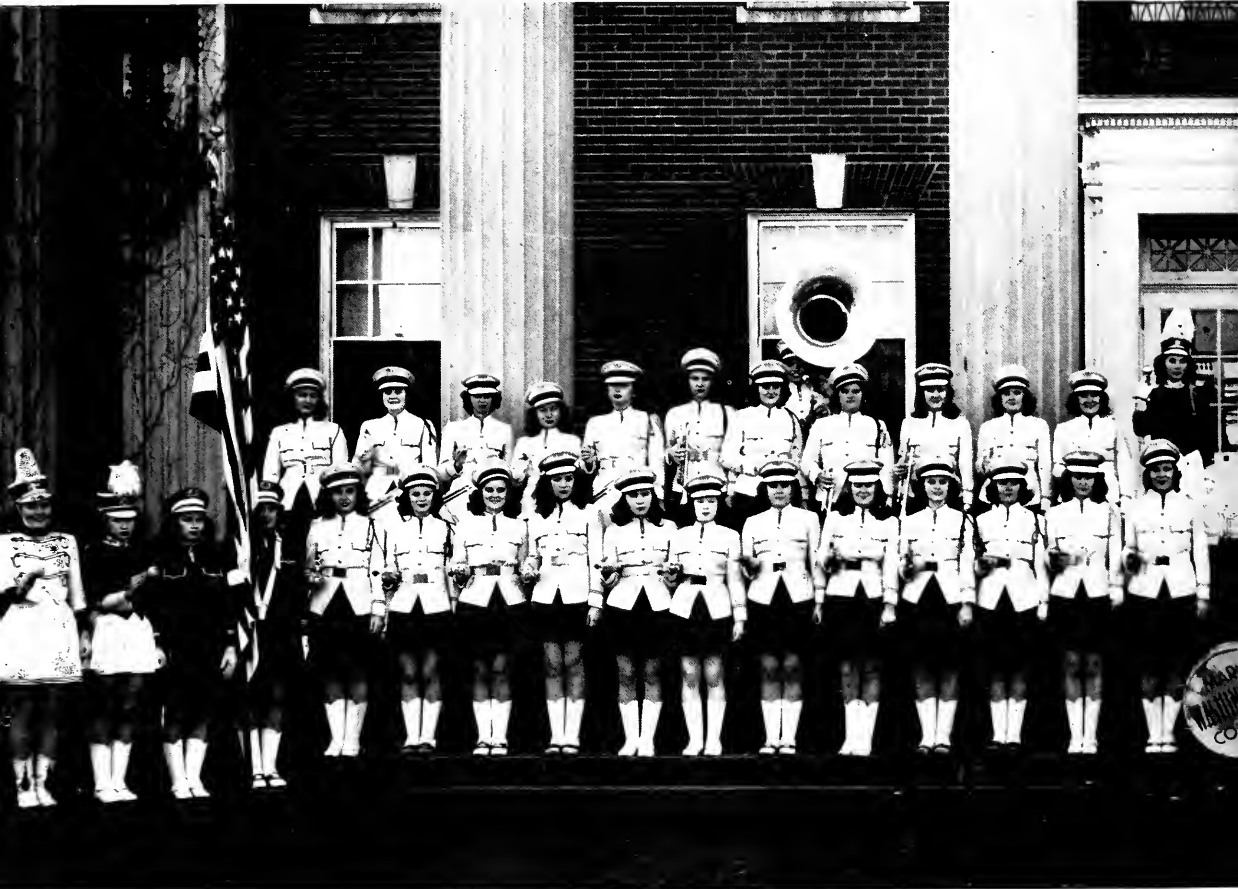

The M. W. C. Band, under the able direction of Mr. Ronald Faulkner, experienced a most successful season. The highlights of the year include the band benefit, the "Winter Wonderland Dance" which we will remember as one of the most picturesque events of the winter months.

There was also a most enjoyable trip to Washington where the band played for the All-Star football game, sponsored by the Touchdown Club. Here the band displayed its precision, ability, fitness, and splendor in the parade at Griffith Stadium.

On the campus the band provided music for a local high school football game and chapel programs.

The band has had a most satisfactory year and is anticipating greater achievements in the future.

Glee Club

The Glee Club, advanced choral organization of Mary Washington College, is composed of 75 members, who are chosen for their singing ability, personality, and musical interest.

In addition to the enjoyment and cultural value to the members themselves, the Glee Club contributes to many occasions on the Hill through solo and small ensemble work, and performances by the entire group.

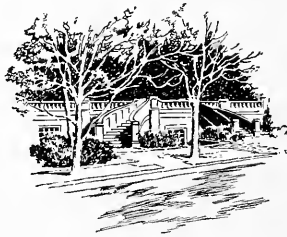

One of the outstanding concerts of the year is the annual Christmas Carol Program which always draws a large audience of students, town people, and out-of-town visitors.

In the spring, a formal concert is given, usually on a Convocation evening.

The services of the Glee Club are not limited to the campus, for this group of singers responds to requests for musical programs from local and state organizations, churches, and radio performances.

The director is Miss Marion Chauncey and the accompanist is Miss Irene Taylor.

The Battlefield

The busy clack of typewriters, noise of scurrying feet in a final rush for copy, groups of heads bent over a table piled high with pictures and paper—these things characterize the BATTLEFIELD Staff at work. Laying plans early in the fall, their work goes on throughout the year, assembling pictures, write-ups, and ideas which will combine to make the students' most prized production—the annual!

"Fight, fight, fight, for the blue and white,"—

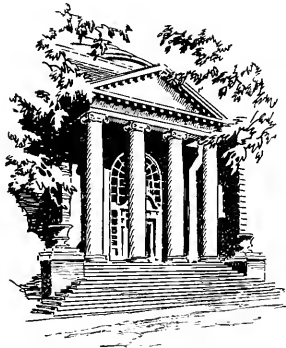

A new pep song, a new year and a new opportunity for A. A. to present a recreational program of athletics to offset and enhance the strain of a collegiate life!

The Freshmen were welcomed with a playday and tea, then introduced to M. W. C. standards of tennis, hockey, swimming, riding. That memorable bus ride to Richmond for the Eastern Virginia Field Hockey Tournament and Sally Heritage making the Eastern team were highlights of Fall Quarter. We broke tradition and put on "Sports Go Bang," the first benefit ever to be presented in daylight and out-of-doors. The thrill the spectators knew was surpassed only by the keen excitement of the participants as the sports of the century passed in review.

When the winter rain and snows came, we took refuge in the gym and interest turned to volleyball and intramural basketball. Many braved the elements of a blustery Saturday night for one of those anything-may-happen cabin parties.

Spring brought a surge of activity, and ruction let loose on Devil-Goat Day when both teams fought for the glory and honor of their colors. Posture week resulted in the selection of the posture queen, and the season ended with the Spring Horse Show and the colorful pageantry of May Day.

A successful year was climaxed with the presentation of athletic achievement awards at the annual banquet.

“It looked extremely rocky for the ‘Senior’ nine that day;
The score stood two to four, with but one inning left to play.
So, when ‘MacDonald’ died at second, and ‘Goodloe’ did the same,
A pallor wreathed the features of the patrons of the game.

“Then from the gladdened multitude went up a joyous yell—
It rumbled in the mountaintops, it rattled in the dell;
It struck upon the hillside and rebounded on the flat;
For ‘Toni,’ mighty ‘Toni,’ was advancing to the bat.”

Apologies to the Author

At a strenuous moment it appears that the "Reds" are in favor.

*The day is fair,
the players are in readiness, and the game is about to begin.*

In any Gymkhana or May Horse Show the equitation classes and the Hunter's Hack build for the climax of the coveted "Knock-down and Out" jumping class. . . .

Column right—March! To the rear—March! To the winds—March! as Cavalry on exhibition execute their well-drilled military maneuvers.

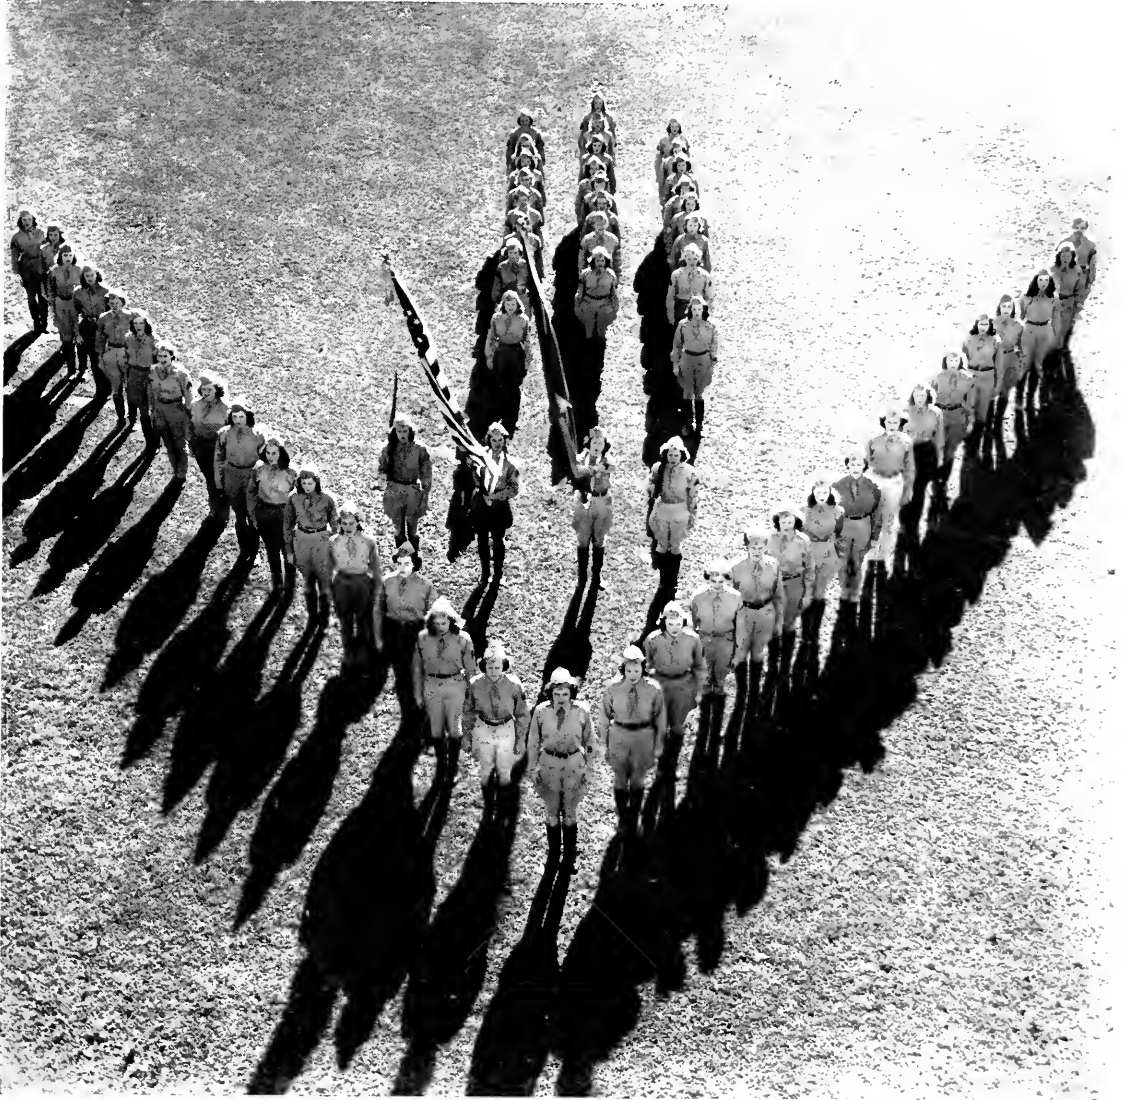

Not only does the Cavalry put on exhibition drills—both mounted and on foot—but, in addition, overnight rides and hikes are a specialty. The main yearly event is the ten-day summer pack-trip into the Blue Ridge Mountains. Oh, that mountain air! That food! The bugs and the rain!

The Cavalry Troop, organized during the war for emergency, is continuing on in peace as a special service organization. As a project it has taken over the salvage of scrap paper on the campus, giving the proceeds to the Red Cross, and willingly performs any duty requested of a military group such as guard duty on special occasions.

The Cavalry represents a disciplined group of horsemen who, at either work or play, never lose that fine spirit of sportsmanship or the comradely manner in which they work together.

Throughout the school year, M. W. C. girls may be seen riding in the ring at Oak Hill Stables, or cantering along woodland trails, or participating in one of the four horse shows held every year. In the fall, new jocks are initiated to riding via the experienced backs of Joe, Prospect, or Gladsom, horses whose unfailing good manners and gentle dispositions have long served to build up confidence and skill in beginners. In November, the Junior Riding Club, which consists of Fredericksburg youngsters, conducts a show in which the excellent horsemanship of these junior riders vies with that of the advanced college girls while hopeful parents and excited classmates hang on the ring fence.

Winter brings icy weather, which is soon forgotten in riding along a frozen ridge under snow laden evergreens while the waters of Hazel Run, bubbling and falling over rocks, wind through a ravine far below. Winter also brings fox-hunting, a sport loved by every rider who has ever followed the hounds on the devious and elusive trail of the fox. After a day's hunting, jocks, exhilarated by a long run with plenty of fences, logs, and ditches to add to the general excitement, hack their mounts back to the stables to dismount on numb feet and trek back to college where they discuss every detail of the hunt over a welcome dinner.

Gradually, drizzling rains, budding trees, and the earthy smell of recently plowed land, announce the arrival of spring. In early April, the Oak Hill Hunt holds its annual Hunter Trials, at Snowden Farm, in which college girls compete over a difficult hunter course set up in a green field enclosed by glistening white fences. During the spring, every class takes at least one breakfast ride, at sunrise, over trails lined with dogwood trees in bloom and returns to a hearty breakfast at the clubhouse.

In May, jocks begin diligently to practice figure eights, hacking, and jumping, in anticipation of the biggest equestrian event of the year, the Spring Horse Show. On rainy days, they sprawl around an open fire in the clubhouse, while Mr. Walther lectures on the conformation of the horse or some other phase of the fascinating subject about which there is always so much to learn. When the big day arrives, jocks spring out of bed at dawn to see if the day will be a clear one before going out to braid manes and tails on horses already glistening from a week's rest and constant brushing and currying. Finally, the classes, which are judged by some of the most eminent horsemen in the United States, begin, and good horsemanship is rewarded by blue, red, yellow, and white ribbons, while the champion rider is awarded a silver cup. Thus, another year's work and fun is brought to a climax and a close.

Grace of movement and beauty of form—that's the Concert Dance Club. This club is trying to bring to the students of Mary Washington a fuller knowledge and appreciation of Modern Dance—that dance form that has the most freedom and expression of all dance. Under Miss Moore's magnificent leadership and guidance the annual concert was presented at Convocation, and May Day was performed this spring even more gloriously than ever before. This year and in the future more and more guest artists in the field of Modern Dance will be appearing at M.W.C., and perhaps even giving lessons. With such stimulation and advancement, it won't be long before we will be able to read—"The Concert Dance Club of Mary Washington College appearing at the Plymouth Theatre, New York, tonight."

Another year just whirled by and with it a bigger and better Terrapin Club. The mermaids numbered about thirty with Love Wohnus, as the able president, Dorothy Marvin, the vice-president, and Ann Tilton, the secretary-treasurer. Initiation went off with a bang and then all of the girls settled down to some real hard work. Work is what we called it, but really it was fun for all because it meant practicing up for the Exhibition, Aquacade, and last but not least the Southern and National Telegraphics. Miss Leonard, the club's sponsor, did a grand job with her timely suggestions and leadership, so big things were definitely expected when we swam off those Telegraphics. Be sure to watch for glad tidings on the performance of all these Neptune lassies who swim with such grace and ease and with the speed of the best of fishes in the years to come, because they won't let you down!

At Twilight Time

*Heavenly shades of night are falling—
It's twilight time.
Out of the mist your voice is calling—
It's twilight time.
When purple colored curtains mark the end of day
I hear you, dear—at twilight time.*

Together at last—at twilight time.*

After the ball is over this group goes into a huddle and is manifestly interested in Ginny's impersonation of an anecdote on a professor. Hush! Hush!—It must not go in print! It would only make for undue publicity!

The Student Government Reception

The Cotillion Club invites the German Club to an informal dance in the big gym for a few gay hours—and, believe it or not, there were plenty of men!

An outstanding date on the Bond Rally calendar—November 1, 1945. The Coast Guard proved matchless salesmen.

Alumnae

These two Alumnae of the Mary Washington College National Association are high-up officials who arrived on the campus one day in spring—Mrs. Charles S. Payne, President, and Miss Betty Dupré, Publicity Chairman—to plan for the Homecoming on the week-end of April sixth and seventh. (They look the part of stylists on parade!) The only reason the other officials in the upper bracket are not in the picture is solely because they did not come at that same time when the official photographer was scurrying round about for the “best shots” for the 1946 BATTLEFIELD.

That was a great heart-warming week-end for Mary Washington College when her daughters came trooping back; the dogwoods seemed to be a-bloom with fresh abandonment, gala of mood, in their honor. It will be yet a greater day when this rank and file of a by-gone day come trooping back again, and yet again.

FREDERICKSBURG

VIRGINIA

Usually, one makes addresses of farewell to graduates, but we wish to extend greetings . . . to all the girls of Mary Washington, 1946. In all probability, we knew you before you knew us. Now that school days are ended and you may scatter to the far corners, we don't want to lose track of our friendship. Remember always that Garfinckel's remembers you. We have watched, with immense pride, as you were being graduated from our Infants' Shop, to the Girls' Shop . . . and thence to the 'Teen, Debutante and Misses' Shops. We've loved watching you grow (in ways that we think are all good habits), and so we wish you to return again and again where we shall always be happy to see you.
